

Some of the tests were done underground.

Those explosions formed craters.

But Doctor, did the nuclear tests hurt the land?

Yes, Adam. The nuclear testing and other projects damaged the environment, but today, scientists and engineers are working to test, monitor, control and, where possible, clean up the damage at the Nevada Test Site. So let's go to the future and see what they are doing to help.

